C. OF C. ANNUAL MEETING TONIGHT

The annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce will be held at the Chamber of Commerce rooms this evening at 8 o'clock.

Great interest is being shown in the election of three directors to take the place of Elva H. Bogart, Joseph M. Herbert and Charles R. O'Connor whose terms expire at this time and who are not eligible to immediate re-election, since the by-laws prohibit the re-election of a director until at least one year after the close of his term.

Two hundred and fifty ballots have already been cast exceeding the total number cast in any preceding election. The polls close at 8 o'clock at which time the tellers will count the votes and announce the names of the three new directors elected from among six candidates nominated at the recent primary election.

The board of directors will then hold its organization meeting choosing its officers for the coming year.

The reports of the president, treasurer and secretary will be submitted. It is planned to have an informal discussion of the subject of snow removal during the time consumed by the tellers in counting the votes and the board of directors in its organization meeting.

RELIEF FUND HERE NEARLY $15,000

An enthusiastic meeting was held at the Young Men's Christian Association rooms Wednesday evening under the direction of Martin Cantine, chairman of Ulster county, for the European relief fund campaign. The whole program began to get momentum as the captains and workers made their report of work previously done. One captain had at least eight lady workers and all had shown by their reports that they knew how to make an appeal in the interest of starving children.

The following is a list of captains and the amount received:

Ward	Captain	Amount
1	E. Frank Flanagan	$449 60
2	William Byrnes	600 00
3	John M. Mahoney	317 40
4	Report not received.
5	Joseph F. Sullivan	183 27
6	Thomas Ward	157 68
7	Louis Stock	210 60
8	Thos. Coughlin; report later
9	John Reynolds	250 49
10	No report.
11	Leo V. Grogan	278 25
12	John B. Rafferty	735 45
13	William Quigley	122 22
	Total	$3,482 05
	Temple Emanuel Rabbi Kaplan	$311 00
	Advanced committee, John D. Schoonmaker	4,460 00
	Saugerties committee	3,700 00
	Ulster Park	500 00
	Grand total to date	$12,453 04

For some unavoidable reasons Ward No. 4 was not canvassed last Sunday and plans are being made to carry this appeal to the citizens of that ward on this coming Sunday afternoon.

Money is still coming to the Y. M. C. A. to be turned over to John E. Mahar. It was learned from the workers that time and again the people were anxious to do their bit for this most needy cause.

Chairman Mahar in his genial way expressed his hearty approval of the way the captains and workers had entered into and carried out so successfully this work in Kingston. Martin Cantine, the Ulster county chairman, also showed that he had received splendid support from all sections of Ulster county, and especially to the people of Kingston, Saugerties and Ulster Park for their quick and helpful response.

Aside from the amount which has been reported above it is estimated that over $1,500 has also been secured in this city either through the churches, the Literary Digest or sent directly to Secretary Lane.

Money may be left at the Y. M. C. A. and will be turned over to Mr. Mahar and then to Charles O'Connor, treasurer. The committee is anxious that all the returns be in this coming Monday.

SENATE WONDERS ABOUT WILSON

Even Members of His Own Party Are Utterly Out of Touch With Him on Tariff Bill—Those Who Oppose It Making Own Plans.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Jan. 13.—Democratic senators opposed to the emergency tariff bill are "utterly at sea" today as to the probable attitude of President Wilson towards the measure.

Since they joined with Republican senators in overriding the president's veto of the resolution reviving the war finance corporation, they have been cut off from communication with the White House.

Although they are banking upon the president to veto the pending tariff bill if it passes the senate, and upon their ability to prevent the president's veto being overriden, they admitted they were "in the dark" as to what the president will actually do if the measure reaches him.

A report he may permit the bill to become a law automatically, if only as an expression of unconcern regarding the desires of Democratic senators who deserted him when he opposed the attempt to revive the war finance corporation, reached them today.

It increased their admitted perplexity over the unusual situation of the Democratic leaders of the senate being completely out of touch with the wishes of a Democratic president.

Efforts to communicate with the president through Joseph P. Tumulty his secretary, have availed Democratic senators nothing, it is said.

Their worries have been increased by the known defection in their own ranks. They have discovered that from eight to eleven Democratic senators from agricultural states, as a result of strong pressure brought to bear upon them by their farming constituents, stand ready to vote for the bill, when it is reported by the senate finance committee.

Hence the filibuster they have planned against the bill, in the form of numerous amendments, ranging from the voluminous codification bill to the immigration and soldiers bonus measures. They intend to delay final action on the bill as far as possible, and to resort to every available parliamentary an dilatory device to prevent its passage.

Several of their leaders declared they were confident the president would veto the bill and that it had no chance of becoming a law at this session, but even then they admitted they were completely ignorant as to "what may be passing through the president's mind." They frankly confessed they are worried over the ominous silence being maintained at the White House.

BEDESKY'S MISTAKE.

Discovers Ford Will Not Run On Kerosene.

Abraham Bedesky of Mettacahonts has discovered that while a number of Fords have been reported to run on their reputations, his particular one will not run on kerosene. While out in his car recently he ran short of gasoline and stopped at Jesse Osterhoudt's to borrow some. He filled his tank from a can which he supposed contained gasoline, but which when he tried to start the engine, proved to be kerosene.

Mrs. Osterhoudt, in the meantime, filled up the lamps in the house from what she thought was the kerosene can. This was gasoline. She discovered her mistake before attempting to light the lamps.

"JAZZ" PORCHES IN COUNTY COURT

Curtin Insists Letera's Job Was a "Botch" and Controversy Brought Up From City Court Causes Interest and Tilts Among Lawyers—"No Cause" for McGrath.

Coming in late Wednesday afternoon the jury in the case of McGrath against Hardy brought in a verdict of no cause for action. William D. Brinnier, Jr., appeared for McGrath and John M. Cashin for the defendant. The action was brought by Mr. McGrath to recover $108.20 which Mr. McGrath claimed was due on a running account which he carried for Mr. Hardy. The account, which was for automobile tires and tubes. Mr. Hardy claimed had been paid from time to time and a final payment of $50 was made and a receipt in full given him, the receipt being destroyed when his home was burned.

The action brought by the Canton Blackstone Company against Sarah L. Thornton, or Ellenville Garage Company, goods sold and delivered, was announced as settled. William N. Fessenden appeared for the plaintiff and W. H. Grogan for defendant.

The action brought by Henry S. Crispell against William R. Harrison and Leon Blankfield, an action on contract, was put over the term by consent.

A jury was taken in No. 21, John Letera against Thomas J. Curtin, an appeal from city court, brought to recover $45 balance due on a contract and $7.97 for extra labor done by Mr. Letera for the construction of two porches on one of Mr. Curtin's houses on Catherine street, this city. Henry Klein appears for plaintiff and Chris J. Flanagan and Judge Walter N. Gill for defendant.

From the testimony it appears that Mr. Curtain let a contract to Mr. Letera to build two porches. Plans were submitted and a price of $60 was agreed upon, according to plaintiff. One payment was made amounting to $15 shortly after the work was started. Mr. Curtin refused to pay the balance when he found that the job was not well done and not according to the agreement. He claims that the porches are not yet completed and that they are smaller than agreed upon, that the plaintiff destroyed valuable lumber which had been supplied for the job and brings a counter claim for $80 for damage to property and ruined lumber.

Plaintiff who took the stand in his own behalf testified to the terms of the contract; he was to do the work and Mr. Curtin was to supply the lumber. He said he had been a carpenter for thirty years and had worked on the boat yards for ten years and was an experienced workman. When Mr. Curtin asked him to construct the porches he had drawn plans and submitted them to Mr. Curtin. One plan, or sketch, he kept and the other he gave Mr. Curtin. Both plans were produced in court but were not the same.

The plan which Mr. Letera kept did not call for a gutter along the roof, he said, and other details which the copy called for. He claims that the plans were altered after he submitted them.

When asked for the scale of the plan Mr. Letera was unable to tell Mr. Flanagan what it was, and questioning brought out the fact that he did not know what was the meaning of the scale of a drawing. He said this was the first plan he had ever drawn.

Mr. Curtin, who is also a carpenter, classified the job done by the plaintiff as a "botch" and said that not only was the porch built smaller than agreed upon but that it was out of line, and the floor had waves in it, that Mr. Letera had used some matched ceiling boards for a roof and roofing boards for the ceiling. From the description of the porches as they now are they might be classified as "jazz" porches.

During the examination of witnesses there were constant tilts between the attorneys and witnesses and Judge Fowler was compelled to warn the on-lookers several times in order to maintain order in the court room.

According to Mr. Curtin the work done by Mr. Letera is worthless and the porches will have to be taken down and rebuilt. The lumber is spoiled and worthless.

The item for extra work which Mr. Letera puts in is for work which he did on a door. This work Mr. Curtin claims he warned Mr. Letera not to do, after looking over the job on the porches. However, after Mr. Curtin had started the work on the door Mr. Letera came one day and "completed" the job. He hung a door which is claimed to be one inch too narrow on one side and put in a sill which was sloped so that every time it rained the water ran in under the door and flooded the room instead of diverting the water outside.

The court room was crowded with interested spectators from the lower part of the city. The case will be continued today.

All jurors not sitting on the present panel were excused until 10 o'clock Tuesday.

AIRMEN DUE IN N. Y. FRIDAY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

North Bay, Ont., Jan. 13.—The train carrying the three American balloonists who have made so much recent history—Lieutenants Farrell, Kloor and Hinton—passed through here early today, enroute to Toronto. The balloonists will stop over in Toronto a few hours only and will then leave for New York which they expect to reach tomorrow morning.

Lieutenants Hinton and Farrell were "pals" again today. They had "made up." Lieutenant Farrell said that he had become convinced that Lieutenant Hinton did not mean that the letter he sent his wife should be made public and that he was willing to be friends again as he believed that Hinton did not mean all of the things he wrote. Both Hinton and Farrell blamed the nervous strain they were under, due to loss of sleep and fatigue, for the outbreak at Mattice in which Farrell knocked Hinton across a room. Both today declared they want to forget the incident.

The three officers were given a rousing, though brief, reception at Cochrane, Ont., last night when their train passed through that town. President Stevens, of the board of trade, made a speech in the railway station, congratulating the balloonsists on their miraculous escape. A crowd of townspeople crowded around the officers, shaking their hands. Lieutenant Farrell made a short speech, thanking the citizens for their cordial reception and for the many courtesies shown them since their balloon landed at Moose Factory. The men stopped at Cochrane only twenty minutes.

RYAN AND WHITE MAY BE RETIRED

It Is Rumored Veteran Police Officers Have Asked Police Board To Place Them On Retired List—Comes Up At Next Meeting of Board.

It is understood that Policemen William Ryan and Patrick J. White have filed applications with the board of police commissioners asking that they be placed on the retired list of the police department. The police board meets the last of each month, and undoubtedly the matter will be taken up at that time.

This year marks the twenty-seventh year of active service on the part of Policeman Ryan, while Policeman White the first of the year rounded out a quarter century of active service, as stated in The Freeman at the time. Both men during the many years they have been connected with the police department have performed efficient and valuable service. Both are men of stalwart build, and there were few men they could not handle when in their prime. Both men are now past sixty years of age.

If the police board when it meets later in the month grants the request of the two officers and retires them from active duty it will leave but three veterans still in service in the department. This year Policeman Edwin Shader will round out thirty years as a member of the city force, and on February 5, Officer Frank H. Snyder will complete twenty-seven years of service. Policeman Frederick J. Fout in December of last year rounded out twenty-one years of service, and is now on his twenty-second year.

Aside from these three veterans there are but four two stripers in the department. Each man in the department is entitled to wear one stripe on his sleeve for every five years of service. The four who have completed their first ten years of service are Chief of Police J. Allan Wood, Sergeant Charles Phinney, Policeman Andrew W. Walker and Patrol Driver Simon Wood.

Sergeant William F. Hanley and Policemen William J. Reardon and William Hess are rapidly nearing the ten year mark and soon will be entitled to wear two stripes on their coat sleeves.

The other members of the force are younger in years of service.

It will be seen by this that Kingston's police force is largely composed of young men who have been carefully selected after passing certain physical as well as mental tests. There are few, if any, cities that can display a finer or more efficient body of men.

FRENCH CROSS FOR KINGSTON MAN

Commander Hickey, U. S. Navy, Officer in Charge at New French Wireles Station, Decorated With Cross of Legion of Honor and Embraced by High Official.

At the formal opening of the new Lafayette radio station at the former aviation camp of Croix d' Hins, near Bordeaux, France, on December 19, the most powerful wireless telegraph plant in the world, Commander Andrew S. Hickey, U. S. N., a Kingston man, was decorated with the cross of the Legion of Honor. Commander Hickey is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Hickey of No. 446 Broadway, and was assigned to duty with the radio branch of the navy shortly after the close of the war and has represented the Navy Department in France for some time, having charge of the work at the Croix d' Hins station.

In its account of the ceremonies the Bordeaux newspaper, La Liberte do Sud-Ouest, says that the exercises were attended by a large number of notabilities and the formal inaugural address was made by Under Secretary of State Deschamps. This wireless station was begun by the United States government in 1917 and after the war sold to the French government, which completed it, with American assistance. After describing the station in detail and printing the speeches, etc., the paper says:

"At the termination of the address of M. le General Ferrie at the inauguration of Lafayette Station, the most powerful radio telegraph plant in the world, M. Deschamps, under-secretary of state, conferred the Cross of the Legion of Honor on Captain Hickey, technical director of Croix d'Hins. Meanwhile to the music of the 'Marseillaise,' the minister gave the valiant officer an embrace, those present standing with heads uncovered."

WINNE'S BUS KNOCKS OUT FORD

About 10:30 o'clock this morning one of the big auto busses of H. C. Winne, who runs the Kingston-Phoenicia line, while coming out of Pearl street to Wall street, collided with a Ford commercial car with a top on it owned by Michael Dean, a peddler of 25 East Union street. The Dean car was going south and the result of the collision was that the Ford had its gas tank cracked, one rear wheel knocked into many pieces and the rear spring badly bent and twisted. The damage to the big auto bus was slight. The usual argument that ensues after the average auto accident then followed and a policeman and a lawyer were called to the scene, when the question as to who had the right of way was discussed. Although the scene of the collision was away from the regular line of travel but a few minutes elapsed before a crowd gatherer and arguments followed as to who was and who was not to blame for the accident.

WADE SENTENCED TO HANG MAY 20

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Bridgeport, Conn., Jan. 13.—Elwood B. Wade, young milk dealer who was convicted of the brutal murder of George B. Nott, was today sentenced "to be hanged by the neck until dead, on May 20, in the state prison at Wethersfield, Conn.," by Judge Hinman.

Wade had been intimate with Nott's wife, the evidence showed, and conspired with her, according to indictments, to get rid of Nott, who, after being shot, beaten and hacked to death, was jammed into a trunk, with his wife's picture and other household effects on top as a screen, and dumped into a swamp.

Mrs. Nott, whose testimony aided in the conviction of her youthful lover, was not in court today. Her trial in connection with the crime probably will be held next month.

Mrs. Mary Wade, wife of the condemned man, was in a state of collapse in a hospital.

AMERICAN LEGION SUNDAY JAN. 16

In quick response to appeals made by The American Legion to eight thousand ministers of all religious denominations in this state, more than five hundred cities and smaller communities will participate in "American Legion Sunday" next Sunday, January 16th. Of the 335 posts of The American Legion in the Empire state, a large majority have responded to the state commander's appeal to attend services on that day in a body. The ministers have agreed to reciprocate by devoting a portion of the services on that day to the policies and purposes of the Legion in co-operation with the drive for 200,000 members in this state, in progress during January. In the services, it will be stressed that the preamble of the American Legion constitution begins "For God and Country, We Associate Ourselves Together."

Several bishops of various denominations have notified Mr. Bondy that they have instructed all ministers under their supervision to cooperate fully with the Legion in the drive. Radiator Co. Cuts Prices.

The American Radiator Company stepped out and welcomed the new year with a 20 per cent cut in prices of cottage size boilers and radiators. By the trade it is considered perhaps the most significant slash yet recorded in building materials, for it leaves the new prices, officials say, only 26 per cent higher than they were before the war broke out in 1914. Company officials declare they have taken the commodity bull by the horns and have slammed prices down to a level where no profits will be made for the next six months. After that they will make up through increased volume of sales. The main idea is to stimulate home building and to accelerate the movement of building costs to a stabilized price level.

THE SMART TRICOLINE FROCK

With the addition of a fur one can wear this smart tricoline frock well into the season.

STYLES IN EVENING GOWNS

Long and Slim Dresses Chief Note at Paris Openings—"Bouffant" Draperies Disappear.

The chief characteristic about the latest among the evening gowns shown at the Paris openings is the fact that they are all long and slim. The "bouffant" draperies of last season have all disappeared and there remain only those lines which follow the grace of the natural figure. All of the materials which were used in those beauteous gowns of last season are still seen, only this year they never protrude in any way.

The thicker fabrics are being used for the formal evening gowns of the winter, velvets, thick satins with heavily woven backgrounds that make them drapable, and metal cloths, which are more apt to be plain than brocaded. The new metal materials look like thick and lustrous taffetas, with, of course, much more quality and body about them and always with that sumptuous glitter woven into their meshes. Lanvin remains faithful to the full dress, and she has created one famous model called the "Empress Eugenie," for which is promised a wave of popularity. It is made of white net with flutings for trimmings and with youthfully drooping shoulders that cannot help but charm.

Lace grows and grows in feminine favor, especially for gowns for wear at night. After all it is the handsomest of all materials, and there is always that very feminine charm connected with it which cannot be duplicated by any other fabric. And because at the present time lace is more scarce than it has ever been, therefore it is more popular for those who lead in fashion. It cannot possibly be imitated. It must be its own handsome self or nothing at all. Many gowns are seen made partly of lace and partly of some other material, the two being draped together in an original manner. Lace caps are noticeably present, and lace flowing sleeves or lace overdresses are all in the limelight.

BLOUSES FOR COLD WEATHER

Chiffon Velvet Comes in for Popular Favor for Late Fall and Winter Wear.

For cold weather wear a good deal of confidence is expressed in the popularity of chiffon velvet blouses. Just at present this blouse is being used more as a window decoration than anything else, but the fabric certainly makes up into an effective garment, and when worn with a satin or lace separate skirt a decidedly becoming afternoon frock is usually the result.

Crepe de chine, crepe meteor, and other soft silks, usually with a crepe weave, but with definite "body," are being extensively used for blouses for the fall and winter season. One of the distinctly new trimmings noted is patent leather in vividly contrasting colors. Appliqued motifs of patent leather are used as well as straight bandings, pipings and belts. One navy crepe meteor blouse recently seen, made on the surplice tie-back line, was trimmed strikingly with collar and cuffs of bright red patent leather. The sleeves were full length and close fitting.

The surplice "tie-back," made with a straight hanging panel back, is one of the new styles. The fronts cross at the waistline and the ends are drawn to and across the back panel, where they are tied in a bow or fastened with an ornamental buckle.

Eyes or Teeth May Be Cause.

Do not take drugs to cure the headache, says the United States public health service. Consult a doctor, a dentist or an oculist to see if the cause can be located. Often the eyes or teeth may be at fault.

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

AUTUMN PARTY.

"We must give a party for the Autumn Paint club," said Jack Frost.

"We must indeed," said Master Chilly.

"Let us have one," said all of the Frost Brothers together.

"Ah, yes, let us have one," said Master Heavy Frost, and Master Very Cool said:

"By all means, let us have a party."

"We will decorate all the windows and nip the flowers and dance over the lawns and bushes," said Jack Frost, "for we want plenty of decorations for our party. And we will all give the party and come to the party and enjoy the party, for we are the Autumn Paint club members."

They agreed to have the party that very night.

"You take the lead, Jack Frost," they said, "and as soon as you tell us what we must do, we will off and do it.

"We will go wherever you say And we will gladly do our work, for our work is our play."

"They call a day that is not far off," said Master Heavy Frost, "Thanksgiving day. It seems they're all thankful that day, or rather they stop that day and think of all they have to be thankful for.

"They think of all sorts of things, such as how nice it is they live in beautiful places, where they have such good times and where there are many things to do.

"Our Magic Paint Brushes."

"And they're thankful they're warm and have lots to eat, and they're thankful that when it is summer time they often have ice cream.

"They're thankful, too, that they have people to love them—mothers and fathers, and so forth.

"And turkeys do not mind being eaten on Thanksgiving day, for they consider it quite an honor to be taken as the special food of such a fine and special occasion.

"But I say," Master Heavy Frost continued, "that we, too, celebrate our Thanksgiving day.

"We, too, should celebrate it, for we can. Listen to my plan."

"Let us hear it," said Master Very Cool.

"I'd like to hear it," said Master Chilly.

"And so would I," said the other Frost Brothers.

"Do tell it to us at once," said Jack Frost. "I am eager to hear."

"Well," said Master Heavy Frost, "it doesn't matter if we celebrate Thanksgiving day a little before or a little after the day, as long as we celebrate it.

"We should celebrate it, for we have a great deal to be thankful for.

"In the first place, we come around every autumn and have a great many fine parties. This is just one of many, many fine parties.

"And we enjoy life so much!

"We paint beautiful pictures, and enjoy it so. We nip the flowers and dance over the lawns and bushes and enjoy doing that.

"Ah, we have beautiful times, and we should be thankful for them.

"And then I believe the squirrels and the chipmunks would come to our Thanksgiving party, and the boys and girls agree that we do a good work, for we see that the nuts are right for them to gather in the autumn.

"Yes, Chippy Chippy and Bright Eyes and Nutty Chum will all enjoy the nuts, and that will be their Thanksgiving party.

"Let's call our Autumn party a Thanksgiving party and let us all be thankful that we come in the autumn on the still, cool nights.

"And, too, that we are allowed to play and work with our magic paint brushes and that no one stops us, but that we, too, can have a little season of the year all of our own.

"What does everyone else say who is a member of the Autumn Paint club?"

"We all agree that it's a fine, a marvelous, a wonderful idea," they shouted.

"Then for our party, our party of joy and work and play, where we tell how thankful we are for our time of the year, for the time of dear old Jack Frost and his brothers and his workers?"

Terrible.

"Tell me, Mr. Wombat, of your early struggles."

"Well, my mother says they were terrible when she wanted to wash my ears."—American Boy.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JAN. 13, 1921

General Pershing's vigorous utterance in favor of world-disarmament shows that soldiers who are ready to fight when fighting is imperative can be pacifist of the right sort.

Returns from 60 of our most important cities—showing a death rate lower than that of 1919, which was also below normal—indicate that 1920 was one of the healthiest years recorded in the United States.

There were 8,983 robberies in Chicago in 1919 and in spite of reforms it is said that the not yet completed record for 1920 will exceed 13,000. But that hustling new police chief may secure a better showing for 1921.

Spanish-America's reported belief that the "Imperial" ambition of the United States is only awaiting its opportunity ought to be somewhat modified by the announcement that we are making ready to get out of Santo Domingo.

Of course Villa found farming too tame. The Mexican government had better keep an eye on the Federal cavalry he now commands and may want to lead into revolt. As long as there is vigor in him the charm of his old life of a fighting bandit is apt to be alluring.

MORE PAY FOR MORE WORK.

Reports from many parts of the country show radical reductions in wages, as great as 33 per cent in some cases. It is said that in many instances the workmen themselves are suggesting new scales of wages, fearing that unless they demand less money they may face long periods of idleness. It is suggested that workingmen can check the decline in wages, or prevent as great a decline as might otherwise be witnessed, by increasing the output of their labor. Such a suggestion would seem to be worthy of attention by those most concerned, for it is self-evident that all men in all lines are not paid for the hours that they work but for the quality and amount of production. It stands to reason that if laborers produce more employers will be able to pay more.

It has never been to the real interests of laborers to loaf on the job, although this policy has been both taught and practiced in recent years, being urged on the ground that the less labor is done the more of it there will be to do. Only recently, even after a reported "crisis of unemployment," there was published news of bricklayers who were laying 341 bricks a day for ten dollars, although they formerly laid 1,200 bricks a day for three dollars. Slack labor of this sort was no doubt largely the cause of the failure in production which so embarrassed the world and carried the cost of necessaries to unparalleled heights. The workers may have prospered temporarily while heeding the doctrine of less work for more pay, but in the very nature of things such abnormal conditions could not endure. It is clearly in the interests of labor now to produce more with a view to secure larger pay by really earning it.

GOVERNMENT PROPS.

Apparently the experts agree that principle went overboard for the sake of expediency when the senate rejected the president's veto of the resolution reviving the War Finance Corporation, Democrats joining with Republicans in the overwhelming vote. The majority of the country's financial opinion is said to have been in agreement with the view of Secretary Houston, whose argument before the senate committee received endorsement in President Wilson's veto, that the time has come to abandon the policy of putting government props under business. But congressmen, especially of the west and south, are less concerned about the fact that the people must pay for the propping than about satisfying the clamoring grain and cotton producers among their constituents.

Nobody argues that this new prop or the old props furnished under war conditions should have a permanent place in our system. It is merely that a congress readily responsive to the demands of producers does not agree with the president and Secretary Houston that the time has come to return or begin to return to correct principles. But if the time has not come for this, neither has it come for economy and reduction of taxes, reforms which in great part will have to wait until the government ceases to give crop guarantees, gets out of the shipping business and finally withdraws from railroad enterprise. As long as particular groups of interests have their cake the people must pay for it.

ACCORD MAY HAVE COOPERATIVE MILL

Could Go Up at Same Time as Creamery, Say Engineers, and All in Neighborhood are Asked to Meeting Saturday to Discuss Plan.

The Accord creamery's contract is let to Ludwig & Company of Auburn, N. Y. This concern bid considerably lower than other contractors, and besides they have had considerable experience in putting up plants for the Dairymen's League.

Mr. Ludwig was on the grounds at Accord Tuesday, January 11, and gave orders at various places for materials to be used. Mr. Baker, the Dairymen's League engineer, was likewise on the grounds and conferred with Mr. Ludwig about the building of the creamery and the materials to go into it.

At the same time Mr. Baker conferred with the two railroad engineers who were present as to location, length and level of the switch to be run in from the Kerhonkson side. They immediately proceeded with the survey and the staking out of the switch.

The committee of the Accord cooperative feed mill was likewise on the grounds and conferred with Mr. Baker, the Dairymen's League engineer, and the railroad engineers as to an extension of the switch to accommodate the cooperative feed mill. This was arranged satisfactorily and the extension of the switch was staked off.

Arrangements were made with Benjamin Schoonmaker for a good sized lot on which to build the cooperative feed mill.

Mr. Ludwig, the creamery contractor, is to give an approximation of the cost of erecting a suitable building. He said both buildings could go up at the same time without interfering or delaying the creamery building in the least degree.

The farmers of the Accord-Rondout valley have been called for a meeting Saturday evening, January 15, at 8 o'clock at the Odd Fellows' Hall, Accord, to consider and to take definite action on (1) the organization of their local cooperative association, and (2) the site, size and cost of the building needed. Each of the above objects has a committee ready to report definitely. Every poultryman, dairyman and general farmer is urgently requested to attend this meeting.

MERCANTILE BOWLING.

Interesting Games Scheduled for This Week.

The games in the Mercantile Bowling League this week are of unusual interest and importance. The first games of Friday evening, scheduled at 7 o'clock, are between the Matthews Company and the Ulster County National Bank. Both of these teams have some fine bowlers and it is difficult to pick a probable winner. On the other alleys, the Everett & Treadwell team will bowl the Kingston Gas and Electric Co. Recently the gas men have been going poorly and are about due for a bracing. These teams have about the same relative position in the league standing. In the 9 o'clock games, the K-M Silk Mills meet the Fullers Shirt Company, the leaders of the league, and the Millard team bowls the Armour Meat Company. The silk men have a team of no mean ability and will make a determined effort to pull the shirt men out of the top position. The Millard team will undoubtedly have little trouble defeating the meat company team, if Decker is in form and supported by Millard and Hotaling.

CHINA FAMINE SUNDAY, FEB. 6

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Jan. 13.—Simultaneously with the announcement of the appointment of an executive committee of the China Famine Fund by Thomas W. Lamont, chairman, a country-wide appeal has been made to Protestant churches to observe February 6 as China Famine Sunday. The appeal, which was signed by Mr. Lamont appointed by President Wilson as head of the American Committee for the International China Famine Fund and by Dr. Robert E. Speer, president of the Federal Council of Churches, urged all ministers to present to ther people the appalling conditions in China and to ask immediate help through contributions and by organizing local relief committees.

While not attempting at this time to start an intensive campaign the committee feels the necessity, it was said, of getting before the public the facts regarding the famine, reported to be the most disastrous in recorded history, and of urging all possible relief immediately. Almost daily statements received at the headquarters of the fund from officials of our government, missionaries and others in the Far East, indicate that only prompt and continued provision of food through cash contributions will make possible the salvaging of any considerable part of the millions now starving in the five northeastern districts of China.

DR. KAPLAN TALKS AT HIGH SCHOOL

Dr. Bernard M. Kaplan, of the Temple Emanuel congregation, addressed this morning the students of the high school on "How to Get the Most Out of Reading." Dr. Kaplan said that reading which supplies food for the mind is like eating which nourishes the body. In eating, it is not how much we eat, but what and how we eat. Wholesome food in moderation properly masticated is more beneficial than plenty of poor food eaten in haste. In reading it is the same. It is better to be well read than much read. Lincoln read comparatively few books, but he read what he read carefully and understandingly. Some persons are omnivorous readers. They read a novel every other day but remember little of what they read and understand still less.

Dr. Kaplan said that the English poet Southey once told Wordsworth that he was always at his books, reading and reading all the time. "Pray, when do you think?" said Wordsworth.

"Reading," said the speaker, "has value only when accompanied by thought."

Dr. Kaplan advised the students to devote their time first to the preparation of their every day lessons, which are arranged by master pedagogues to give the youth a solid foundation for a well trained life.

"When you have time to spare," continued the rabbi, "take proper physical exercise so as to grow up healthy and well. mens sana in corpore sano, as the Latin saying has it: A healthy mind in a healthy body. And then if you have time left read, but read good, wholesome literature. Read carefully and analytically and you will get the most out of your reading."

Dr. Kaplan was introduced by Principal Lewis as one of the most useful citizens that have come to Kingston. "It was my pleasure to serve with him on several committees," said Mr. Lewis, "and we were glad to listen to his excellent ideas."

POINCARE MAY SUCCEED LEYGUES

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, Jan. 13.—President Alexander Millerand today took up the important task of selecting a new premier for France to succeed M. Leygues who, with the balance of his cabinet, resigned last evening.

Raoul Peret, president of the Chamber of Deputies, called upon the president and urged the appointment of Raymond Poincare, former president of the French republic.

A number of newspapers also had advocated the appointment of M. Poincare because of his aggressiveness.

Belief was expressed in semi-official circles that if M. Poincare were appointed and accepted the post he would hold the portfolio of finance minister also. In such event it is said that former Premier Vivani would be foreign minister.

It was pointed out by newspapers favoring M. Poincare that he made an excellent record for himself during the war. Afterwards he was appointed to the reparations commission, but resigned owing to alleged encroachments upon the commission's power by the supreme council. The press took the view that the inside knowledge gained by M. Poincare while he was on the reparations commission would stand him in good stead at the forthcoming conference of the allies when German indmnity will be discussed at length.

A report was current that President Millerand did not favor M. Poincare.

Political opponents of the president claim that he is seeking to gain greater influence over the government and that he could not hope for domination with such a strong man as M. Poincare in the premier's post.

NEW YORK HAS CLOSING ORDER

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Jan. 13.—Broadway's gilded cafes that have been feeding pleasure seekers until four and five o'clock in the morning hereafter must close their doors and shut off their jazz music promptly at 1 a. m., according to the latest edict from Police Commissioner Enright.

The order went into effect this morning and the police that weren't busy chasing burglars were sent up and down the Rialto sounding the warning to cafe proprietors. Such places as the "Follies Bergere," "The Little Club," "Moulin Rouge," "Palais Royal" and others of similar note promptly obeyed the edict and closed down. A couple defied the police and remained opened, the proprietors declaring there is no law to force the closing of restaurants.

JURY GETS CASE.

Letera Says He Couldn't Do Good Job With Poor Lumber.

The Catherine street porch case which was begun Wednesday afternoon in county court before Judge Fowler and a jury was completed at noon today and sent to the jury. Several witnesses were called by the defense and at the conclusion of defendant's case several witnesses were called by plaintiff in rebuttal. Carpenters who had made an examination of the work done by Letera for Mr. Curtin testified that the porch was not exactly true but that in their judgment the work was as good as could be done with the material furnished. Letera testified that the material furnished was rough seconds brought from the shipyard and that he had to plane the material down before it could be used.

TREASURE ISLAND

By ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON

Condensation by Alice G. Grozier

Robert Louis Stevenson had "the most speaking of presences; a steady, penetrating fire in the widest eyes, a compelling power and sweetness in the smile; courteous waving gestures of his long, nervous hands, a lit cigarette generally held between his fingers." His conversation was incomparably brilliant, yet he did not dominate the talk; "rather he helped everyone about him to discover unsuspected powers of their own."

Henley says "he radiates talk as the sun does light and heat." Colvin compares his warm humanity to the steady flame at heart of a great driftwood fire, while his dashing humor was like the myriad colored flames.

Stevenson had moreover the most sterling sense of duty and of justice. "We were put here," he says, "to do what service we can, for honor and not for hire."

He was eager to risk his life at the time of the agrarian troubles in Ireland, and again in Samoa, he was threatened with deportation for his activities in behalf of the natives. His loyalty is best expressed in a letter to Barrie about their beloved Scotland, "Singular that I should live here in the South Seas under conditions so new and so striking, and yet my imagination so continually inhabit that cold old huddle of gray hills."

But above all he was temperamentally a poet. From childhood it was his

To hear

The odd, unknown, enchanted gong
That on the road hales men along.
That from the mountain calls afar,
That lures the vessel from a star,
And with a still, aerial sound
Makes all the earth enchanted ground.

SQUIRE TRELAWNEY, Doctor Livesey and the others have bidden me tell the story of our search for old Buccaneer Flint's hidden treasure, and so I go back to the time when my father kept the Admiral Benbow inn. Then it was that the seaman, Bill Bones, came to us for lodging, his sea chest following after in a hand-barrow.

At his request we called him "captain;" he settled down, always on the watch for a "seaman with one leg," and constantly singing an old sea song:

"Fifteen men on the dead man's chest—
Yo-ho-ho, and a bottle of rum!
Drink and the devil had done for the rest—
Yo-ho-ho, and a bottle of rum!"

Then one day an old blind man left him the pirate's "summons" or "black spot," which so excited him that, combined with the effect of his rum drinking, it brought on a stroke, and we found him dead upon the floor.

Mother and I opened his sea chest, where I discovered a packet done up in oil-silk; this I took with me, and as soon as I could, went to the doctor's house, where I found him with the squire.

To them I told the story of the happenings at the inn, and gave them the packet.

"You have heard of Flint, I suppose?" laughed the doctor, as he handled the packet.

"Heard of him!" said the squire, "heard of him, you say! He was the blood-thirstiest buccaneer that ever sailed! If we have here the clew to old Flint's treasure, as you seem to think, then I'll fit out a ship in Bristol, take you and Hawkins here along, and I'll have that treasure if I search a year!"

When they opened the packet, there fell out the map of an island, with every particular needed to bring a ship to safe anchorage on its shore, and full directions for finding the treasure.

"Tomorrow," said the squire, "I start for Bristol; in two weeks—yes, in ten days, we'll have the best ship, sir, and the choicest crew in England. You shall be the ship's doctor, Livesey, Jim cabin boy and I am admiral."

But it was longer than the squire expected ere we were ready for sea. In the meantime I went to Bristol also, and while looking over the ship and around the dock, I discovered that our cook was a seaman with one leg. He was very domineering with the crew, but servile and smiling to the rest.

I began to have my suspicions, but he was so deep and clever that my doubts of "Long John Silver" were soon quieted.

We settled aboard our ship, the Hispaniola, with Captain Smollet in command; then one morning, a little before dawn, the boatswain sounded his pipe and the crew began to man the capstan bars.

"Now, Barbecue, tip us a stave," cried a voice.

"The old one," cried another.

"Ay, ay, mates," said Long John, who was standing by with his crutch under his arm, and at once broke into the air and words I knew so well: "Fifteen men on the dead man's chest"—the crew coming in on the chorus; and then we were off on our cruise for the treasure.

At sundown one evening, I went to the apple barrel for an apple, and, finding them low, I got into the barrel bodily and being rather sleepy, sat there a while in the dark; soon a heavy man sat down with a crash nearby; I was about to jump out when I heard John Silver's voice, and kept very still. Before he had said a dozen words I knew that all honest men aboard were in great danger.

Well, I made the discovery that Long John and most of the crew were old shipmates of Bill Bones and John Flint; they knew the object of our voyage, and were planning to do away with our party and get the treasure for themselves.

A moment more and the lookout shouted "Land Ho!" and we anchored at "Captain Kidd's anchorage," according to the chart. I told the doctor and the squire what I had heard, and they had the captain send the crew ashore, so that we might have an opportunity to talk matters over.

It was decided that we must go on, and we counted those we could trust, only to find that we were but six against nineteen.

The next morning it was plain that mutiny hung over us like a thundercloud. Captain Smollet thought it best to give the crew shore leave, and a party was made up including Silver. Some of the men, however, remained aboard. I suddenly took it into my head to go ashore, too, and slipped unseen over the side and into the forward sheets of the nearest boat; as soon as the bow struck among the shore-side trees, I caught a branch and swung ashore, making off into the nearby thicket.

I cannot give all the details of the voyage; they were many and exciting, but one or two happenings I must tell.

While wandering about in the thicket I came upon a wild-looking man, who said he was a seaman, Ben Gunn, marooned on the island three years before. I got his story, and he ours; he was a great help to us, as you shall see.

In the meantime our party had abandoned the ship and taken up the fight ashore. I had a notion to get out to the ship, cut her adrift and let her go ashore where she would, and so prevent the mutineers from sailing away in her; and remembering Ben Gunn's mention of a coracle which he had made and put in hiding, I set out to find it; being successful, I made my way to the ship, and laying hold of her hawser, was about to finish cutting her loose when I heard voices from the cabin; one I recognized as that of the coxswain, Israel Hands, the other was a sailor whose name I did not know. Both were drunk, and when I got a look at them through the cabin window, I saw that they were in a death's grip.

The strong current had by this parted the last strand of the hawser which I had left, and both, coracle and ship were adrift; with a leap I caught at the jib boom, and clung panting, left without retreat on the Hispaniola.

When I got aft I found the sailor dead, and Hands in a sad condition. He was friendly enough while helpless, but as he grew stronger he asserted himself and issued orders, which I obeyed until the ship was round in the low wooded north inlet.

The excitement of the last maneuvers had interfered with my watch upon the coxswain, but something caused me to turn my head, when I saw the fellow half-way towards me, his dirk in his hand; he chased me around the deck, trying to corner me; quick as thought I sprang into the mizzen shrouds and rattled up hand over hand into the cross-trees; none too soon, the dirk had struck not a foot below me as I climbed.

Now I primed my pistols and reloaded, and Hands seeing this, knew the dice were against him; in spite of this he started up after me. "One more step, Mr. Hands," said I, "and I'll blow your brains out!" I saw his right hand go up over his shoulder, something sang like an arrow through the air, and I was pinned to the mast—both my pistols went off and escaped from my hands, but they did not fall alone; with a choking cry the coxswain loosed his grasp and plunged down head first, and I saw him through the clear water, lying on the sand beneath.

I found that I was held simply by the skin of my arm, and pulling myself free, I finally got ashore, and with difficulty reached my friends. They had had some fierce battling with the mutineers, but in the end a flag of truce appeared and Silver came forward to bargain. The doctor, much to the surprise of all, gave him the chart; but this was explained later, for when they dug for the treasure and reached the bottom of the cache, nothing was found but a broken pick and a board with the word "Walrus" burnt into it—the name of Flint's ship!

Ben Gunn was the real hero. Early in his stay on the island he had come upon the treasure, and with great difficulty transported it to a cave and hidden it, seven hundred thousand pounds in minted money of all nations, besides heavy bars of gold.

The doctor had wormed the secret out of Ben Gunn and then arranged to give the chart to Silver, knowing that the cache was empty.

We piled the treasure aboard the ship, set sail and finally reached a port on the Mexican coast, where we added to our crew.

After a good voyage we reached home just as friends of the squire were about starting out in search of the Hispaniola.

In Mexico grows an odd plant the odor of which causes people to lose their way and make their sense of direction nil until the smell ceases.

What Is an Earthquake?

Nothing is more terrorizing than an earthquake, in the presence of which we stand powerless to act effectively. Earthquakes are caused by rapid vibrations of the earth's interior. The displacement—that is, the amplitude of the vibrations—in the great majority of earthquakes is only the fraction of a millimeter. When it exceeds four or five millimeters the quake is destructive. Tremors of the earth's crust are measured by means of delicate instruments known as "seismographs," which are freely swinging pendulums, so placed that they trace markings upon paper, which the moving needle just touches. These modern instruments do not only tell when an earthquake has occurred, but they record tremors in all parts of the world, and one of the highly significant facts brought to light by this means is that minute and "insensible" tremors of the earth are almost constant and some at least of these tremors consist in three series of waves—the first and second phases being the "preliminary" tremors, and the larger waves the "main shock."—Hereward Carrington in Leslie's.

Look for the Best.

Look for the best in people and in life. When the worst presents itself, remember there is another side. Wait, and it will appear. Teach yourself early in life to be glad of another's success, sorry for another's failure. The moment you cultivate the opposite feeling, you invite ultimate disaster to your life. The thoughts you send forth will come back to you in events, finally. Thought is the main road to happiness. As you think, so shall your life be. Circumstances and environment are changed by intense thought action. Happiness comes mainly from within. Every day we hear and read of successful men and women judged from a worldly standpoint who are miserable and unhappy. Prosperity, friendship, success and the best of all love, add greatly to the happiness of a happy mind.—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

Indians Not Always Horsemen.

The Indian is more impressive on his horse than off it. Therefore nearly every artist who has been inspired to sketch the Indian has put a horse under him. So probably the artists themselves are to blame for the common impression that the horse and the red man have always been inseparable, when as a matter of fact, Columbus had come and gone long before the horse had found his place in the new world. The Indian's acquaintance with the horse dates back to the visits of Cortez, Coronado and De Soto, all of whom came equipped with horses. The last two, threading their way through the new land, had many horses in their trains. These escaping, became the nucleus of the wild herds that later comers found here.—Clark Wissler in the American Indian Magazine.

Pumpkin an American Plant.

The home of the pumpkin is believed to be America. It has been found growing wild in Mexico, and was under cultivation by the aborigines in Florida, Mexico and the West Indies, when these regions were first visited by Europeans. Doctor Gray, the botanist, believed that all species except gourd squash are American. The species and varieties of this vegetable have been so confused that this is not certain. The cheese pumpkin and the sugar pumpkin are used for making a circular opening in the top the center of which is the stem. Through this hole the seeds and pulp are removed, and the cavity filled with sliced apples, spices and sugar. The whole is then baked and served.

Noise Alone Will Not Win.

There is such a thing as detracting from the main issue by the noise you make in doing it. Folks get tired of plain noise. To merit persistent survival noise should have some merit in itself. In some towns they have ordinances against unnecessary noise. That in itself ought to be an argument against noise for noise's sake. And unless you can continually produce something that claims the patience of the people you will soon lose any power your noise once had to win attention. So you must see to it that your actions are sufficiently worthy to stand alone when the noise stops. If people begin to associate you with noise alone you will soon be lost to human interest.

MILLER'S MESSAGE ON ENFORCEMENT

Governor Miller's message sent to the legislature Wednesday night urging speedy passage of a state prohibition enforcement act conformable to the Volstead law, follows:

The open and notorious violation of the act passed by congress to enforce the 18th amendment of the federal constitution, the serious crimes and flagrant acts of corruption committed in connection therewith, and the scandalous contempt for law engendered thereby require prompt measures to promote law and order, and to restore as far as possible respect for law by compelling obedience to law.

Certain propositions authoritatively settled by the United States supreme court should govern our action, viz:

1. The 18th amendment "is operative throughout the entire territorial limits of the United States, binds all legislative bodies, courts, public officers and individuals within those limits, and of its own force invalidates every legislative act—whether by congress, by a state legislature or by a territorial assembly—which authorizes or sanctions what the section prohibits."

2. The concurrent power to enforce the amendment conferred on congress and the several states "does not enable congress or the several states to defeat or thwart the prohibition but only to enforce it by appropriate means."

3. The Volstead act is the law of the land, universally operative regardless of action or inaction by the states.

4. The amendment prohibits the manufacture, sale, transportation, importation and exportation of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes.

5. The Volstead act defines intoxicating liquors as those containing one-half of one per centum or more of alcohol by volume which are fit for use for beverage purposes.

I take it that there can be no difference of view upon the proposition that the present liquor tax statute of this state should be repealed at least in so far as it conflicts with the Volstead act. The question then arises whether further action should be taken by the legislature, and if so, what?

No action of the legislature can make the Volstead act either more or less binding. That act is the law and so long as it remains on the statute books will continue to be the law binding on every one in the state irrespective of any action the state may take or fail to take. The sole question is whether the state should adopt measures to aid in the enforcement of the law.

After careful consideration, I have reached the conclusion that the state should itself aid in the enforcement of the law, and I base that conclusion principally on the following reasons:

1. As it is the duty of the citizen to respect and obey the law, so it is the duty of the state to promote law and order by compelling as far as possible obedience to law. The eighteenth amendment as interpreted by the supreme court of the United States confers concurrent power on the states to enable them to discharge that duty.

Second—The present conditions are intolerable. According to current reports the law not only is being openly and flagrantly violated, but has become the cause of the most scandalous corrupion. When war prohibition went into effect, the law-abiding in the liquor business discontinued the traffic. The lawless took advantage of the situation to make unlawful gain and the illicit traffic thus engendered disturbs the good order and corrupts the morals of the community. The state cannot remain indifferent to that condition. No citizen who desires social order and well being can remain indifferent to it irrespective of what his views on the subject of prohibition may be.

Third—The Federal Government can enforce such a law only at enormous expense and with an army of agents in every state.

Fourth—That manner of enforcement will strongly tend to break down state power, the maintenance of which is essential to the preservation of our scheme of government.

Fifth—The prohibition of manufacture and importation may most effectively be enforced by the Federal government but the other prohibited acts can best be enforced by local officers.

Sixth—The state may render effective aid in preventing all of the prohibited acts thus lessening the necessity of federal enforcement and directly contributing to the maintenance of law and order essential to the security of every citizenz.

I do not think a state department to enforce the law is either necessary or expedient, and I recommend the repeal of the existing liquor tax law, which will necessarily abolish the Excise Department. Care should, of course, be exercised in such repeal so that its operation may be prospective only. Pending proceedings and prosecutions might well be committed to the Attorney General.

As the manufacture and sale for certain purposes is not unlawful, it may be an aid to enforcement to have certificates therefor issued by some state agency upon the payment of a fee sufficient to pay the cost thereof and upon giving an undertaking to comply with the law with sufficient penalty to assure compliance. That might well be committed to a bureau in the State Tax Department.

The law should define the prohibited acts in as simple and concise language as possible, conformable to the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act. Penalties for a violation of the act should correspond with those prescribed by the Volstead Act and I think a prosecution under the latter act should bar one under the state act.

There should be provision for seizure and forfeiture of liquor illegally possessed as well as for prosecution of offenders.

I think that suitable enforcement provisions should be incorporated in the Penal Law and the Code of Criminal Procedure and that the enforcement of the law should be confided to peace officers and prosecuting attorneys as is the case with other laws. That will, at least, make it possible for law-abiding communities to prevent the flagrant violations of law now occuring in their midst. It should make it possible to prevent flagrant and open violations of law anywhere. I am not unmindful of the fact that it is difficult to enforce such a law in any community where public opinion does not support such enforcement, but we have nothing to do with the policy or the wisdom of the law. That has been determined in the manner provided by the constitution, and we who are sworn to support the constitution must take it as we find it.

The honest enforcement of the law may lead to its modification, the tolerated disobedience of it can only breed disorder and create contempt for all law.

I urge the speedy passage of an effective enforcement act conformable to the Act of Congress on the subject.

ROUMANIA NOT TO WAR ON REDS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Moscow, by Wireless to Berlin, Jan. 13.—The soviet government is in receipt of a message from the Roumanian government announcing that Roumania has no intention of going to war against Russia and that there is complete willingness at Bucharest to negotiate any disputed questions.

The note was written by Take Jonescu, foreign minister in the Roumanian cabinet.

The document says in part:

"It is with great pleasure that Roumania takes cognizance of your radiogram of December 25 assuring us concerning the concentration of Russian troops on our northern frontier.

"In my turn, I repeat what I have already declared on several occasions, that the Roumanians have no intention of taking any steps or making any impositions not warranted by international law. We are determined upon complete neutrality regarding Russia. This is to be accepted as a declaration that we are not at war against Russia. We wish to negotiate amicably any questions that may have arisen between Roumania and Russia.

"It is our wish that the negotiations cover all matters that may have arisen during the past two years. I ask you to inform me if you share in this viewpoint. In the case of an affirmative answer, I propose resuming our mutual contact in order to take into account questions which, in your opinion, should form the subject of pourparlers. But, whatever, the attitude of the Russian government, I insist upon repeating that the Roumanian government will maintain an attitude of non-interference towards Russia. We harbor no hostility towards Russia whatsoever."

SCOUT REPORT OF LENINE'S ILLNESS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Berlin, Jan. 13.—The report that Nicolai Lenine is ill at Moscow is not confirmed and it was generally discredited in Berlin today. Two German specialists who had been summoned from Berlin were being called called to treat Professor Kartov, president of the supreme council of the soviet, who was desperately ill of heart trouble it was learned today.

Professor Kartov died before the German physicians reached the Russian border and their summons to Moscow was countermanded by wireless. Both turned back to Berlin.

The arrangements for the trip of the German doctors to Moscow by way of Riga was made by Victor Kopp, emissary of the soviet government in Germany.

Kopp received word that Professor Kartov, in addition to the heart affliction, had contracted blood poisoning and was in a desperate condition. The radiogram contained a long list of the sick man's symptoms in order to assist the German doctors in diagnosing the case.

The suggestion was advanced here that Kartov may have been used as a nom de plume for Lenine, but this theory was scouted. Kopp who is acquainted with all the soviet officials said that Kartov is a real personage and a prominent figure in the economic councils of Russia.

MRS. BRAUER SANE SAY PEOPLE

Cleon B. Murray, attorney for Mrs. Anna Brauer, who abandoned her infant child on the mountain near Cragsmoor on May 14 last, appeared before Judge Fowler in county court Wednesday afternoon and asked that the report of the commission which was named to inquire into her mental condition at the time of the act, be confirmed. The commission made a report on December 22 after hearing had been held and testimony taken, in which they found that Mrs. Brauer was temporarily insane at the time she abandoned the child and recommended that she be confined to an institution where she could be cared for. The report of the commission was described several days ago in The Freeman.

District Attorney Traver appeared for the People and opposed the confirmation of the report on the grounds that the findings of the commission were not supported by the evidence given at the hearing before the commission. Mr. Traver stated that from the evidence it appeared that Mrs. Brauer was not insane at the time she abandoned the child but sought to get rid of the child and after abandoning it on the mountain returned to her work in New Jersey where she was employed and later after thinking over the matter told her employer and decided to return and rescue the child. It was while she was on her way back to Cragsmoor that she was arrested.

Judge Fowler after hearing Mr. Murray and District Attorney Traver reserved decision and announced that he would announce his decision Monday.

BIG DRUG RAID GETS RESULTS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Jan. 13.—Government and city police agents expressed belief today that the arrest of four men in narcotic drug raids last night would clear up an opium smuggling plot by which several hundred thousand dollars worth of illicit drugs have been brought into this country in the past few months. The arrests were made by thirteen detectives and two internal revenue agents and $20,000 worth of drugs were seized. The prisoners gave their names as William Kennedy, John Russo, Henry Fay and Harry Glazer. Kennedy is employed in a United States appraiser's office and Fay is a checker at the steamship piers. The police said they found opium and heroin in Fay's rooms valued at $15,000. They declare they found forty packages of drugs in Russo's candy store.

McELEVEY BACK IN JAIL

From Which He Escaped—To be Father, Not Fugitive.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, Jan. 13.—James McElevey went back to a cell in Joliet today because he wanted to have "everything clear" behind him for his bride of two months and the child that is to come.

McElevey escaped from Joliet prison last May. He was serving a sentence of from one year to life for highway robbery. He had been twice paroled and each time sent back for violation of the parole laws.

A few weeks after his escape he met a girl and before long they were married. Eventually McElevey learned he was to be a father.

Then he went to the girl he had married and told her that he was a fugitive convict. They talked it over, prayed together and McElevey called Police Sergeant William Stapleton, the man who arrested him formerly, and told the officer to "come and get him."

"I'm proud of you," the girl wife said as the detective took her husband away. "Youre just noble, that's what you are. And I'll be waiting if they keep you in for 20 years."

VINCE COFFEY TO FIGHT MARTIN

Edward Cashin, the auto accessory dealer on the Strand, received word today from Promoter Gus Joy of Poughkeepsie that he had matched Vince Coffey to step twelve rounds with Johnny Martin of Poughkeepsie in the main bout of the fights to be staged by the Argonne Club in the Bridge City on Wednesday evening, January 26. Mr. Joy also stated that he was expecting to match Joe Coffey to step six rounds with another good boy the same night. The Coffey-Martin argument should prove a dandy as both are good, fast fighters. Martin has met a number of good men and obtained decisions over some of the best. It is expected that a large number of fans from this city will attend the fight that night. Coffey is rapidly rounding into condition. His side is practically healed and he will be in excellent shape for his go with Martin.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

New York, Jan. 13.—The trading element on the floor acted on the assumption that the decreased borrowing demand that was noted in the stock loan market last night meant that the upward movement was over and these traders sold stocks at the opening of the stock market today, causing declines of from fractions to one point. It was not long, however, before it became evident that the buying power was unexpectedly of large proportions, all of the offerings being easily absorbed and by the end of the first 15 minutes, vigorous advances were in order. Mexican Petroleum was prominent and after yielding ⅛ to 163⅝ was bought in large blocks and had a quick advance to 167. The steel stocks acted in the same manner, opening losses being followed by gains. Republic Steel after yielding 1⅜ to 70¼, rose to 71½. International Paper was directly influenced by the closing of the contract for its output for the year and rose 3 points to above 60. Baldwin Locomotive was offered down ¼ to 91¼ and then rose to 92½. Steel Common sold off ⅝ to 82⅞, but rallied from that level. Caddo Oil developed activity, advancing 2 points to 17½. The Copper stocks did not share in the improvement and were generally in supply at concessions. Railroad stocks were quiet and slightly lower.

The market continued to display pronounced strength in many issues during the forenoon, although prices moved in an irregular manner. Most interest was attached to the trading in Republic Steel, which rose 3 points to 73. Lackawanna Steel responded to the placing of a large rail order by New York Central with an advance of over 1 point to 57¾. Steel Common rose from 82⅞ to 83½. Reading rose over 1 point to above 85. Mexican Petroleum was actively traded in and after selling up to 167¼, reacted to 165½. Studebaker yielded 1¾ to 52¾.

The feature of the afternoon trading was a sudden break in Crucible Steel to 95½, a drop of 6¾. There was a sudden selling movement in Mexican Petroleum which fell 6 points from the high to 161¼. Weakness was apparent in the rest of the list, Steel Common falling from 83½ to 82⅝.

The market closed weak; government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds steady.

MAN'S QUEER PETS

Animals and Birds That Have Figured in History.

Death of King Alexander of Greece, Credited to Bite of Monkey, Calls Forth Reminiscence.

The report, which later was denied, that King Alexander of Greece died from the bite of a pet monkey, and the presentation to the prince of Wales of a young koala, or Australian bear, a mountain devil, and a barking lizard, during his trip around the world, bring to mind the peculiar pets of nations and of famous men and women of history, says a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society.

The natives of Pisa, Italy, kept tame eagles. The Florentines kept lions, and the Romans had wolves, the latter as an outgrowth of the Romulus-Remus story of the foundation of the city. Many peoples besides the Romans have made pets of wolves. Despite their proverbial ferocity in the wild state, many, taken as cubs, grow tame and manifest the traits of a faithful dog as a companion.

The history of the sport of hawking, or falconry, engaged in to some extent today, extends to prehistoric times and recalls the intelligent devotion displayed by the pet hawk of Genghis Khan, which three times in succession dashed a cup of water out of the hand of its master, who was thirst-parched after a hunt, in order to save his life. The water had been collected drop by drop from a pool on the height of a cliff. When the hawk had deliberately knocked the cup from his hand for the third time and at last sent it spinning between the rocks, the master drew his sword and killed the bird. Then he wearily climbed the cliff, only to find the dead body of the most poisonous variety of snake coiled at the bottom of the clear pool.

Monkeys have nearly always been general favorites, perhaps because of the uncanny intelligence they show. The pathetic little beggars with the organ grinders on our streets, the mascots of airplanes, and Prof. Garner's "Little Susie" are notable examples. King Solomon had apes brought into his kingdom once in every three years, and after stating this fact, the account naively adds that he exceeded all the kings of the earth for wisdom.

The part played by dogs and horses in the World war is a complete story in itself, but cats, chickens, cows, and goats shared with them the honors among the boys in France. The cats in the trenches furnished amusement, so the tale is told. Puss seemed to have no fear of bullets, but manifested a high degree of annoyance when her glossy coat was spattered with mud during the process of washing her face and combing her fur on the top of a parapet.

Every child has heard the story of Dick Whittington's cat which was sent to sea and won her poor little master a fortune by killing the rats that wrought such havoc on the dinner table of a foreign king. But, sad to relate, the history of this early lord mayor of London does not substantiate the legend.

Solved the Mystery.

While still a novice in the art of stenography I was called one day to take a very important letter from the president of the firm. In my nervousness I failed to notice that there were but a few blank pages in my notebook, and as a result was compelled to write on the cover of the book. All went smoothly in the transcription of my notes until I reached the cover, and then try as I might I could not make out a single word. Finally in desperation I went to the president and told him of my plight. He was quite kind, offering to dictate that portion of the letter over and suggested that I endeavor to read a few lines so that he might get the connection. However, this was an impossibility on my part, whereupon he began studying the little dots and dashes and suddenly blurted out: "Can it be that you are trying to read your notes upside down?" which to my great consternation and embarrassment solved the mystery instantly.—Chicago Tribune.

Copy American Methods.

Four French cities where Y. W. C. A. foyers are maintained have recently put on finance campaigns in true American fashion, and have raised sums of money exceeding the most optimistic predictions, according to a Y. W. C. A. secretary just returned from France. They are St. Etienne, Tours, Bourges and Mulhouse. The finance campaigns were mapped out and directed by American secretaries and accomplished by the French directors. Sufficient [illegible] to carry the 1921 budget of expenses for Y. W. C. A. work in these cities is now in the bank. In Mulhouse 120,000 francs were raised for joint Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. work.

The Yearning for Prominence.

"Why do you insist on walking out in a high hat and a frock coat?"

"Well, everybody likes to be considered a great man, whether he deserves it or not. Every now and then the conductor of a sightseeing wagon points me out as a cabinet official or a senator or something."

Pay Dirt.

"I've tried for gold and copper, even for diamonds. But I can't seem to strike pay dirt."

"Why don't you try farming?"

FLYER TRIES TO KILL WITH PLANE

Aviator, Suddenly Gone Mad, Misses Victims by Margin of Few Feet.

Paris.—A French airman, suddenly gone mad, hunted three men and a woman for more than an hour in the fashion of a hawk hunting a rabbit.

Two shepherds, a priest and a woman were talking on a road near Marseilles when they saw an airplane flying toward them. Suddenly the machine swooped down on them. They threw themselves flat on the ground to escape the whirling propeller and heavy undercarriage. The plane, driven at tremendous speed, swooped over their prostrate bodies, missing them by a few feet.

Missed Them by a Few Feet.

A few minutes later the aviator returned. As he neared them the aviator once more threw his plane in deep descent. Once more they were forced to throw themselves on the ground. After he flew away for the second time the three men and the woman scattered to find shelter in the fields. Some of them had seen the face of the aviator. He was roaring with laughter and they knew they had to deal with a maniac.

BODY TURNED INTO STONE

Unusual Case in California Has Baffled Specialists and Attending Physicians.

Martinez, Cal.—Beyond a door at the county hospital here, a cheery "come in" greets all who approach the threshold of the room occupied by John H. Daley, who for the past quarter of a century had lain in his bed, or sat in a chair, like a rigid statue of marble or bronze, unable to move hand or foot, as though his body was slowly turning to stone.

A miracle man of stone, whose case is the most unusual that has ever been known to the medical profession and has baffled scientists, John Daley lives in apparent contentment, as the days and the years pass slowly by.

It was in December, 1895, as the year was drawing to a close, that the active life of John Daley as a teacher in the Oakley school, in the vicinity of Antioch, Cal., came to an end and he took to his bed never again in his life to walk or to enjoy the social intercourse and society of his fellow men. It was then that he suffered the last serious attack of inflammatory rheumatism that spread through the bones of his body like a poison circulating in the blood. His joints stiffened, the muscles relaxed, and the slow solidifying process began.

Makes 3,000-Mile Trip To Die in a Cemetery

The Elizabeth (N. J.) police were endeavoring recently to trace the identity of a man found hanging by a length of picture wire from a tree limb in Fairview cemetery, in Westfield, a suburb. In one of the pockets was this note:

"Pardon me for coming 3,000 miles to use your cemetery. This is my reason for returning to my native country." The note was signed "William J. P. Warburton, 3d."

The man had 63 cents and wore a plain band ring. He was about sixty-five years old. His clothing was good.

Where Justice Was Blind.

Frankfort, Ky.—The appeal of a wife and six small children won a pardon for Denny Harris of Pike county, who had served nearly a year of a three-year term. Conductor George Singleton of the C. & O. railroad, whose testimony convicted Harris of robbery of freight cars, investigated when he learned that the family was in destitute circumstances. He found the mother and all the children barefoot and half naked. The railroad man dressed the entire family and brought them here to see Gov. E. P. Morrow.

POULTRY

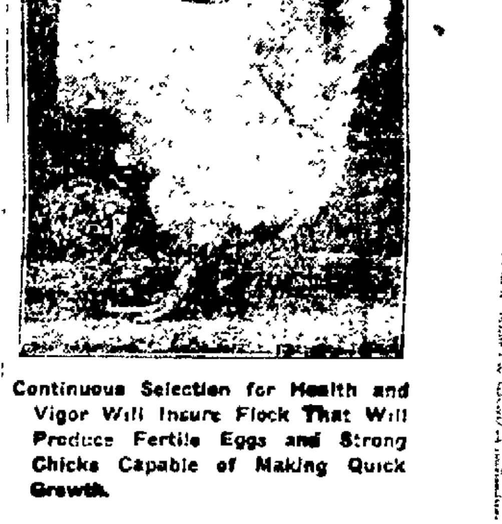
MITES CAUSE OF SCALY LEG

Application of Crude Petroleum to Legs With Brush or Dipping Is Best Treatment.

Two species of itch mites attack fowls, one of which is the cause of scaly leg. While this mite commonly remains on the feet, burrowing through the scales and causing their enlargement, it also attacks the comb and the neck. A crust of loose tissue is formed above the burrows, and intense itching results from this mining habit. When scaly leg is left untreated the feet of the birds often become badly distorted, and in some cases the fowl can scarcely walk or get to the perch. Sometimes terminal joints of the toes are lost.

As the mites are transferred from one bird to another, scaly-leg fowls should be treated promptly and should not be introduced among clean birds. Investigations made under the supervision of the United States Department of Agriculture show that carbolineum or crude petroleum used on the roosts doubtless will aid in preventing the spread of the scaly-leg mite from one fowl to another. Applying crude petroleum to the legs with a brush or dipping the legs into this oil is very effective. One application usually is sufficient, but if the scales are not largely shed off after a lapse of 30 days the treatment should be repeated. Kerosene oil is applied by some farmers in the same way, but is less effective than crude oil. In using either, care should be taken not to get the oil on the upper part of the leg or on the feathers. A less severe but more laborious treatment consists of soaking the feet in warm soapsuds until the scales are loosened and then greasing the feet and legs with sulphur and lard, or lard containing 5 per cent crude carbolic acid.

The other itch mite, commonly called the depluming mite, is a very small creature which burrows into the skin near the base of the feathers. The intense itching sometimes causes the fowls to pull their feathers until they are almost naked. Dipping of all fowls of an infested flock in a tub of water containing about two ounces of flowers of sulphur and one-half ounce of laundry soap to each gallon of water will give complete control. The fowls should be completely submerged and the feathers ruffled so all parts of the body will be reached by the liquid. Care should be taken to keep the dip stirred during treatment so as to keep the sulphur in suspension. In case a flock has lice as well as the depluming mite, three-fourths ounce or one heaping tablespoonful of sodium fluorid should be added to each gallon of water in the foregoing mixture.



Continuous Selection for Health and Vigor Will Insure Flock That Will Produce Fertile Eggs and Strong Chicks Capable of Making Quick Growth.

GIVE CHICKENS EARLY FEED

Excellent Plan to Have Some Grain Scattered in Litter Ready for Their Breakfast.

If there is a reasonable amount of litter on the floor and the house is ratproof, it is a practical plan to feed so that there will be some grain left in the litter overnight. This will be an inducement to the hens to get to work as soon as it is daylight. That's one practical and inexpensive method of prolonging the day. As a rule, hens like to go to the perches rather early in the evening on cold days, but they will be down at dawn if they know that they will find something to eat. See to it that some grain is there in the litter ready for them. This is an easier and pleasanter method than getting around to do the feeding before daylight. If the hens loaf on the perches until broad daylight one of two things is wrong: Either the house is too dark or the hens are over fed. Either condition is readily corrected and it will be dollars in your pocket to do so.

N. Y. ALOOF FROM BOXING BODY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Jan. 13.—Though the New York state boxing commission declined a founder membership in the newly-formed national boxing association on the ground that it could not legally subordinate its functions to the authority of any outside body, there was a feeling in boxing circles here today that New York will eventually become a member.

The members of the New York commission are on record as thoroughly in accord with the aims of the new association.

"Boxing now becomes a happy omen of the great organized kingdom of sport. It is facing the greatest opportunity in its history," one member said today.

Members of the commission feel that in the course of a year between twenty and twenty-five states will be affiliated with the association.

DEMPSEY ONLY ONE IN CLASS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Jan. 13.—"Jack Dempsey could have whipped the best of the old time heavyweights. He is in a class by himself.

"Georges Carpentier has a chance with the champion if he is what they claim. But Dempsey looks like a winner to me if they ever meet."

Here is the opinion of a veteran—a man who has seen most of the good ones.

Meet up with William A. Tremblay, of Miles City, Montana's delegate to the National Boxing Convention.

"Straightaway Bill," as Tremblay is known in his home town, is qualified to speak. He was at the ringside when Sullivan lost to Corbett in New Orleans. He saw Corbett and Fitzsimmons at Carson City, Jeffries and Johnson at Reno, La Blanche and "Nonpareil" Jack Dempsey, Lavigne and Wolcott and many others. He is the man who discovered and brought out the late Stanley Ketchel.

Born at Ogdensburg, N. Y., in 1858, but clear eyed and active at sixty-two, Tremblay speaks with the wisdom of long experience. He went in for sport while in his teens. He was a welterweight boxer in the "skin glove days." He played ball against the old Cincinnati Red Stockings—Philadelphia Athletic All Star Tourists at Ogdensburg in 1875 when A. G. Spaulding and Harry Wright were with those famous old teams. But boxing is his hobby. Let him tell you about Dempsey:

"Dempsey could have beaten any of the old champions as I see it," he said. "His cyclonic style, his love of a fight and the power of his punches at short range put him in a class by himself. I've seen most of the good ones, but none to compare with him. Ketchel, whom I brought out in conjunction with Bob Senate, was a puncher like Dempsey, but he lacked Jack's power and proportion.

"If Dempsey and Carpentier meet I think Jack will win. If Carpentier is as good a puncher and is as clever as they say he is, I think he has a chance with Dempsey, but he will have to stay eight or ten rounds. If he can stay that long he may make Dempsey over-anxious and worry him, though Jack can go the route. This would give Carpentier his chance. However, my roll goes down on Dempsey.

"I don't believe Dempsey has started to go back. I did not see the Brennan fight, but I believe Dempsey simply had a bad night. The best race horse will have his off day, you know. It is the same with a boxer. Dempsey's showing against Willard, Miske and others is enough for me."

Tremblay is just as enthusiastic over the new national boxing association. He predicts that it will be a success and that it will pave the way for legalized boxing in many states where the game is now under ban.

"The National Boxing Association of the United States is the best thing that has ever happened for boxing," he said. "There is nothing wrong with the game itself. It is the one sport where a fellow always has his opponent in front of him and it is healthful and manly. The trouble has been that unorganized forces have controlled it in the past. In unity there is strength and we have unity now."

Tremblay was largely instrumental in securing legalized boxing for Montana, where they now have a law permitting 15-round bouts to decisions. He is the official appointee of Governor Stewart to the boxing convention. When at home he serves as a deputy collector in the internal revenue service.

Farm Equipment.

Henry Williams of High Falls has just purchased of the Canfield Supply Co., a complete wood sawing outfit consisting of a wood saw and gasoline engine mounted on a large steel truck.

From The Frozen North.

In the show window of the Canfield Supply Co. is a telegram to Dr. Goodgion from his old friend the factor of the Hudson Bay Company at Mattice, where the returning balloonists reached the railway.

"Old Colony" Dinner.

That cranberries belong to the traditional Pilgrim dinner is shown by the menu of the "decent repast" served at the first "Celebration of the Landing of our Forefathers," which was observed December 22, 1769. This day was celebrated by the Old Colony club of Plymouth with a procession and a dinner consisting of a large baked Indian whortleberry pudding, a dish of sauquetash (succotash); a dish of clams; a dish of oysters and dish of codfish; a haunch of venison roasted by the first jack brought into the colony; a dish of fowl; cranberry tarts, a dish of frost fish and eels, an apple pie, a course of cheese made in the old colony.

S. A. Bradubry, a clerk in the Hudson Bay Company's post at Moose Factory, Ont., who was the first white man to emerge from the frozen wilderness after having helped succor the three U. S. naval balloonists. He was one of the first to greet the aeronauts on their arrival at Moose Factory and left there with his dog team and sled while the airmen were resting up for the long journey to civilization. Bradbury told the first authentic story of the rescue of the aeronauts.

FATHER OF MODERN SPINNING

Invention of Samuel Crompton, Englishman, of Immense Importance to the Western World.

At one time muslins were imported from India for the reason that English spinners were unable to produce yarn fine enough for the manufacture of such delicate fabrics.

The invention of Arkwright, by which spinning with rollers was used, and Hargreaves, with his spinning jenny, led the way for Crompton to combine both of those inventions in his mule, thereby enabling spinners to draw out long threads in large numbers to more tenuity than had ever been done by the East Indians.

This invention enabled Lancashire to assume the first place as cotton spinner to the world. Samuel Crompton was born December 3, 1753, at Firwood. He came of the farming class and had rather a good education. On the death of his father his mother carried on the farm and set Samuel to spinning at home. Five years after his majority he completed his mule, "his mind during that time being in continual endeavor to realize a more perfect principle of spinning."

This he did at the expense of every shilling he had; and he gave his invention to the world, but in such a way that he gained no credit. Years afterward his statue was erected in Bolton.—Chicago Journal.

Make Your Mind Your Klondike.

Every man has a rich mine of precious ores if he wants to work it. The other day the news went out that great oil fields had been discovered in Klondike, the land famous for gold. The papers say men are rushing to stake claims as they did in the palmy days of the gold craze, and there will be many who will part with all they have and make their way to what promises to be a quick fortune. In the last rush the way to Dawson City had many a ghastly group of bleaching bones when the snows of winter melted away. The chances are this present craze will duplicate the scene. Only a few of the many make money. It will ever be thus as long as men try to win by chance the riches that usually come by toil.—Grit.

Fever Present in Mental Disease.

Doctor Bond in the Boston Medical Journal adds a new item to medical knowledge of mental disease. In 71 mental patients, fevers, slight or severe, transitory or chronic occurred in over 30 per cent, a surprising result for consecutive cases. The diagnoses varied and show that fever occurred in imbecility, epilepsy, arteriosclerotic dementia, general paralysis, dementia praecox and manic-depressive psychoses. Of 19 manic-depressive insanity patients, 13 had fever and 6 did not. Of 19 dementia praecox patients, 8 had fever and 11 did not, this being the only disease in which normal temperatures were found more often than the reverse.

Man Analyzed.

Man is physically as well as metaphysically a thing of shreds and patches, borrowed unequally from good and bad ancestors, and a misfit from the beginning.—Emerson.

BIGGEST AND BEST SHRINERS' BALL

The fact that it was a Shriners' ball; that the proceeds would go to the Industrial Home; that an elaborate program had been arranged, and that it was an ideal night, all combined to draw to the armory Wednesday evening, probably the largest assembly of dancers and guests that has ever filled the great drill shed on any such occasion. The decorations of American flags, long red, white and blue pennants and great banners of the national colors were especially pleasing. But the most effective decoration of the ball was that of the many red fezzes appearing in such large numbers throughout the crowd of dancers and guests, whose every comfort was carefully provided for by their hosts.

A particularly beautiful picture was presented just before the repetition of the program when those who had been dancing grouped themselves against the walls of the armory making one think of a huge old fashioned garden with its border of gay, delicate and lovely flowers, overtopped every here and there by a towering red hollyhock.

The program began with an orchestral concert in which Curt Shurter's orchestra of Kingston and the New York Broadway Syncopaters orchestra alternately played selections that were heartily applauded.

The concert numbers were followed by a solo number given by Miss Marguerite Calvert, dancing violinist, who delighted the audience to the point of an enthusiastically called for encore, both by her music and her dancing.

Bettie North then sang admirably one of the popular songs of the day, also being encored. Miss North has a soprano voice of wide range and was especially enjoyable in that she sang the ballad style of songs that never fail to reach the heart. And she sang expressively. Her last number in the repeated program was an original song composed by the pianist of the New York orchestra and called forth much applause.

The Fonti Boni Brothers, both of whom had excellent voices, then did some vaudeville stunts that called forth considerable laughter.

There was next given an exhibition of fancy dancing by Wells and Jans of the George M. Cohan's Theatre which was indeed remarkable.

General dancing was then enjoyed for an hour or more, when Miss Calvert again appeared, giving as her last number a violin selection without the dancing accompaniment which showed that the young woman has much real talent. There was a further exhibition of dancing by Wells and Jans, and then some exceedingly clever mimicry of Gilbert Girard well known to phonograph owners.

This clever mimicry was produced entirely by the vocal cords of the performer who most realistically imitated an Aeolian harp and a jew's-harp; then the opening and emptying of the now supposedly passe bottle of a vintage of other days. One of the most remarkable feats performed however, was the perfect imitation of the sounds of the Aeolian harp, and a cathedral clock, striking as the harp is played, and the "cuckoo" and striking of a Swiss cuckoo clock. Another good bit was the mimicking of a saw mill in operation; while some of the farm yard family seemed actually present, in voice at least. A St. Bernard and a black and tan dog also spoke in no mistakable terms, and a realistic dog fight was vocally staged. This part of the program closed with an almost uncomfortably realistic imitation of the feeding of a lion in its cage, and for this performance the performer used a good sized lamp chimney as his assisting instrument.

Throughout the evening the refreshment, the lemonade and cigar booths all most attractively decorated were wonderfully well patronized.

As the result of a thoroughly enjoyable evening, for the dancers were delighted with the music and dancing, where hundreds were the guests of Shriner hospitality, the Industrial Home is sure to receive a substantial sum of money.

Amber as Medicine.

The medicinal uses of amber have recently been discussed, and it is somewhat curious to find the belief in the curative virtue of amber necklaces, in cases of cold in the head, still seriously held in China. One correspondent reports such a cure in a case that had refused to yield to any other treatment, and attributes it to the action of amber so worn on the mucous membrane. Another goes only so far as to suggest that since amber had apparently a curative value as used internally by the old physicians, its use in necklaces had a rational basis "according to the views once in vogue," which is reasonable enough.

Ancient Signs Asked Votes.

The use of chalked instead of printed notices for advertisement and political propaganda has ancient precedent, as the "graffiti" of Pompeii attest. There we find in red letters painted on the walls that "the barbers wish to have Trebius as aedile" or that "The fruit sellers wish one Quintus Priscus for the duumvirate."

HAD NO SYMPATHY FOR HIM

Professor's Wife of Opinion That Man Who Would Do Such a Trick Ought to Sneeze.

The professor in the corner gave a violent sneeze, but his wife took no notice.

A-tish-oo.

A second sneeze issued from the professor's corner. Again his wife took no notice. But, at the third nasal spasm, their visitor broke in to say:

"Poor professor! What a bad cold he has!"

"No, it isn't a cold. It's absentmindedness," replied his wife, throwing a scornful glance at her husband. "I left him in charge of the baby this morning—just for a few moments. But men are so silly with babies, you know!"

"What did he do?" asked the visitor, in an undertone.

"Why, when the baby cried," answered the indignant mother, "he gave her the pepper pot to play with instead of the rattle!"

FOUR-LEAVED CLOVER RARE

Plant Everywhere Considered an Omen of Good Luck Is Really a Freak Growth.

Even in Druidic worship in pre-Christian times, the trefoil leaves of the clover plant were symbols of religion, setting forth the three grades of Druids, Bards and Neophites. In Christian mythology its leaf is frequently held to symbolize the Trinity, and some Irish authorities insist that it is the true and original shamrock which St. Patrick used to illustrate how three separate objects, such as leaves, could be one.

The four-leaf-clover is a freak growth and the causes that produce it are heredity and nutrition. After a moist season clover plants with from four to seven leaves, and some having only two leaves, are found. Some plants are abnormal by heredity, and reproduce themselves with the same characteristics in successive years when their environment remains the same, external influences merely modifying the size of the leaves.

The four-leaf clover is everywhere held as an omen of good luck to the finder, partly on account of its rarity and partly because of its crosslike form.

Carved Statue of Famed God.

The name of Unkei, is a household word to the Japanese. The son of a fisherman, and in his youth a humble fishermen himself, he was responsible for one of the most remarkable epochs in the history of Japanese wood sculpture. The story is told by those who are supposed to know that the king of the underworld was very much irritated that Unkei had never done him justice, although the sculptor had attempted to carve his image many times, says Elsie F. Weil in Asia. So when he died, the king of the dead Buddhist souls sent Unkei back to earth, that after having seen the god, he might make a faithful portrait. The result may be seen today in the temple Enno-ji at Kamawkura, where Unkei's statue of Emma, cruel and savage in its strength, strikes terror into the hearts of all who fear to meet the Judge of Hell.

Daisies Like Sheep.

One would think it impossible for a daisy to be mistaken for a sheep, yet in New Zealand a member of the daisy family grows to such a size and is so like a sheep that it is often mistaken, even by shepherds, for one of these animals.

The vegetable sheep, as it is called, grows in exposed places, and its branches are clothed with small leaves which have the appearance of wool. The shape and size of the plant make its likeness to a sheep complete.

Vegetable sheep are found on grass which is suitable for sheep, and they often cause the shepherd a good deal of trouble. Thinking that one or more of his sheep have been left behind, he goes out of his way to investigate, only to find that the supposed sheep is merely a plant.

Favored Silent Barbers.

Barbers in the early days of the Christian era were not permitted to talk while shaving a patron. Indeed, silence was so much appreciated by persons while under the barber's hands that mutes were preferred for this service.

CALLS FOR MANY QUALITIES

Archeologist Must Be Scholar, Linguist, Engineer and Artist, and Expert Handler of Men.

The modern archeologist in Egypt must be more than a scholar. He must have studied history, it is true; he must be familiar with what is known of the art and life of Old Egypt and he must have mastered the ancient language so that he can read the hieroglyphs carved on temple and tomb.

But scholarship is only part of his equipment. He must know something of engineering and something of drawing; he must have a sense of organization; he must himself be ready to turn to with pick and shovel, should occasion arise.

The task of disinterring ancient structures and their precious contents uninjured is a delicate one, not to be done hastily or haphazardly.

In addition to being scholar and engineer, linguist and artist, the modern archeologist must understand how to handle men. The men employed in archeological excavation in Egypt are usually boys from 10 to 20 years of age. Older than that, in a country where men and women age tragically fast, they are likely to be stupid.

Usually they are irresponsible and, spurred on by the light-fingered "antika" dealers in neighboring villages. The wise archeologist puts them on piece-work—so much for every cubic foot of earth removed, with bakshish, carefuly calculated on the basis of the "antika" dealers' current rates, for every object unearthed.

Since the bakshish varies with the condition of the object, it is to the interest of the worker to get each "find" out entire, if possible, or, if breakage is inevitable, with no part missing.

Half of the minor objects discovered go to the Egyptian government and half are retained by the institution conducting the exploration.

SHOWED ENMITY IN BOYHOOD

Encounter Between Youthful Cromwell and King Charles I Might Be Called Prophetic.

Cromwell and Charles I of England first met when they were children at Hinchinbrook house, the home of a mutual friend of both the king and Oliver's father. The boys were told to play together while their elders talked over affairs of state and fashion. They got along well enough for a while, and then a dispute arose. The young king was not used to opposition to his princely will, and when Oliver stoutly clung to his rights the king struck him.

Oliver cared not a bit that the blow was aimed by a king's hand. He swung his somewhat grimy fist as hard as he could, and caught Charles on the nose with the to-be-expected result. Blood flowed in quantities, and the young prince set up a great howl. Servants came running, and all might have gone ill with the careless commoner had not Charles' father taken a hand and declared that the blow was to be forgiven, as it was given in defense of a right, and his son must learn to know that right was greater than kings.

Cough May Originate in Stomach.

In the Bulletin de la Societe Medical of Paris, Dr. G. G. Hayen describes a patient, a man of fifty-three, who for twenty-five years had had vague dyspeptic disturbances for which he had taken pounds of sodium bicarbonate and other drugs in the course of the years. During the last six years he had been tormented with a cough and spitting of thick mucus from the stomach. Under treatment of the dyspepsia by lavage of the stomach and dieting, the cough disappeared. Hayen reiterates the necessity for seeking latent stomach disease with a puzzling cough, and also the necessity with chronic gastritis to restrict to two meals a day, with a nine-hour interval.

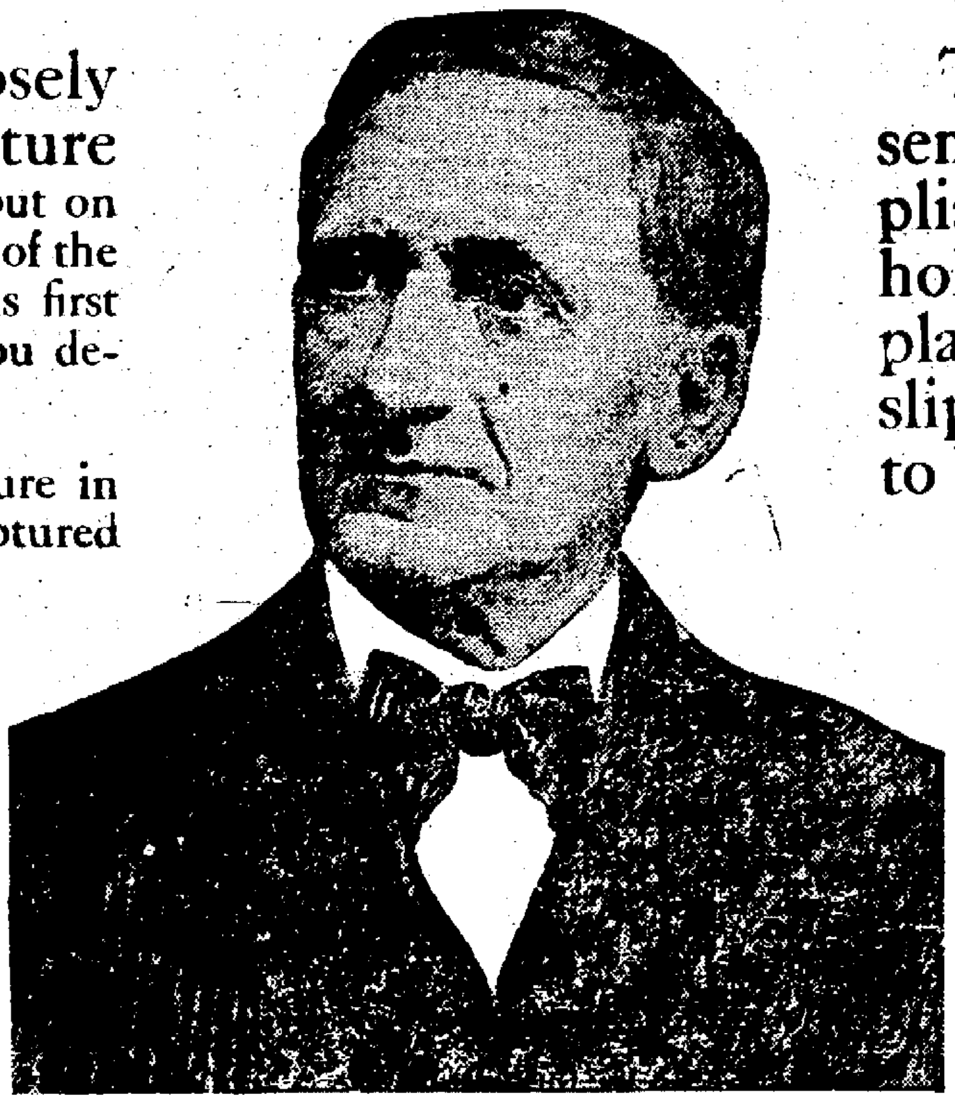
The Best Support in the World For a Rupture

Is The Human Hand

The WORST Support Ever Devised, Is a Hard, Unyielding Knob, or Pad, Pressed Into the Rupture by a Steel Spring—Thereby Preventing Nature From EVER Having a Chance to Bring About a Healing of the Parts.

The Brooks Appliance most closely resembles the human hand as a rupture support. You will notice the first moment you put on a Brooks Appliance, the pliable, flesh like touch of the velvet finished rubber and it will take only this first experience of comfort and security to make you decide—"This is what I want."

For the benefit of our readers we take pleasure in publishing the Brooks offer to save all who are ruptured from wearing painful makeshift trusses that do not cure.



A Portrait Done in Charcoal by Herman Pfeifer, From a Photograph of Mr C. E. Brooks, Inventor of the Appliance and Founder of the Brooks Appliance Co.

The Brooks Appliance Co. gladly sends their remarkable patented Appliance ON TRIAL to prove that it holds the rupture back, keeps it in place, prevents its coming down or slipping out and finally assists nature to heal up the rupture.
